Welcome!

And THANK YOU for joining Read to a Child's eighth annual fundraising campaign - Help Kids in Need Love to Read!

We are thrilled to have you join the effort in helping to raise $100,000 in just one month to support the continued transition of the Read Aloud Mentoring Program to online platforms and to reunite (or establish) virtual reading pairs of students and reading mentors. Our campaign will run from March 1-31, during National Reading Month. We will be offering special prizes for fundraisers who meet particular goals throughout the month. We will be announcing these prize opportunities via email and on social media – stay tuned!

(Insert your short personal story)

My love of reading was sparked by my parents and older siblings, who read aloud to me every night before bed. Everything from "Curious George" to "Harry Potter" (my personal favorite) - I always asked for just one more book or one more chapter! As my brother and sister got older, they joined in and would read aloud to me before bed, too! It was always a family tradition.

As I got older and learned to read myself, I would bring home books from school and insist that we all read them together. Some of my favorite memories involved a book in my hand and my family always encouraged my love for books.

Unfortunately, not every child is lucky enough to be read to regularly. 80% of 4th graders from low-income families are not proficient in reading. Furthermore, Did you know COVID-19 school closures are estimated to result in achievement levels of up to a year behind. Mentor student relations are now more valuable than ever as the need rises for consistent, stable one-on-one relationships to help students feel safe and connected in addition to the incredible literacy benefits they receive from weekly read aloud sessions.

Read to a Child inspires caring adults to read aloud to children and to help create better opportunities for the future. Volunteer reading mentors give their student partners the time, confidence, and tools to reverse the cycle of illiteracy. I'm teaming up with Read to a Child to help raise $100,000 this March that support the continued transition of the Read Aloud Mentoring Program to online platforms and to reunite (or establish) virtual reading pairs of students and reading mentors. Hello! March is National Reading Month and I'm helping Read to a Child raise $100k to support the continued transition of the Read Aloud Mentoring Program to online platforms and to reunite (or establish) virtual reading pairs of students and reading mentors. Together we can spark something meaningful and help take programs from schools to screens! Anything you can do to help will be greatly appreciated. To: My circle of friends, family & colleagues Subject: Help Kids in Need Love to Read!

Dear Friend,

My love of reading was sparked by my parents, who read me a bedtime story each night. The National Institute of Education's Commission on Reading identified the single most important activity for building knowledge required for the eventual success in reading is reading aloud to children. Did you know? COVID-19 school closures are estimated to result in achievement levels of up to a year behind. Mentor student relations are now more valuable than ever as the need rises for consistent, stable one-on-one relationships to help students feel safe and connected in addition to the incredible literacy benefits they receive from weekly read aloud sessions.

Help Kids in Need Love to Read by Supporting Read to a Child

Read to a Child enables caring adults to read aloud to children and to help create better opportunities for the future. With COVID-19, Read to a Child is transitioned their signature mentoring program, the Read Aloud Mentoring Program to virtual platforms. They are hard at work reuniting (or establishing) reading pairs with caring adult mentors and student mentees across the country.

Fun Fundraising Ideas

You can fundraise while getting your family, friends and colleagues involved! Keep in mind, people love to 'get something' when they 'give something'. Here are a few ideas:

- A chance to win something! Host a raffle and sell tickets to fundraise using prizes like a vacation day, gift cards, or ask local businesses to donate prizes.
- Host a Read-A-Thon and get your kids involved! Donors can pledge funds per book read or per minute reading and have your kids track their reading for a day, a week, or even the full month! It's a great way to stay on theme and raise money for Read to a Child.
- Host a virtual Trivia or Game Night with your network!
- Host a virtual 'happy hour' or 'coffee break' with your network that $10 cocktail or $5 latte can go toward funding our Read Aloud Mentoring Program!
